

All vessels pose some risk to Australia's marine biosecurity.

Biofouling occurs when organisms attach and grow on the submerged parts of a vessel such as the hull, propellers and rudder.

Vessel biofouling can introduce exotic marine species into Australian waters. Once here, they can spread and threaten marine habitats. They can impact our seafood industries, environment and our economy.

Source: <https://www.agriculture.gov.au/biosecurity-trade/aircraft-vessels-military/vessels/marine-pest-biosecurity/biofouling>